

Structure

The RIO Platinum Account is a unique investment in physical platinum.

The minimum investment level is set at £30,000.00.

This investment is held in platinum bullion and this will make up 80-85% of the asset class with any remaining balance being held in cash or traded through various mining stocks as opportunity arises.

Precious metals, including Platinum, are often produced in emerging market countries, with demand coming principally from industrialised nations. The political and economic situation is, however, far less stable in many emerging market countries than in the developed world. They are generally much more susceptible to the risks of rapid political change and economic setbacks which affect precious metal prices.

Precious metals are typically considered a finite rather than a renewable resource. If supplies of a precious metal increase, the price of the precious metal will typically fall and vice versa if all other factors remain constant. Similarly, if demand for a precious metal increases, the price of the precious metal will typically increase and vice versa if all other factors remain constant. The planning and management of precious metal supplies is very time consuming. This means that the scope for action on the supply side is limited and it is not always possible to adjust production swiftly to take account of demand. Demand can also vary on a regional basis. Transport costs for precious metals in regions where they are needed also affect their prices.

Direct investment in precious metals involves storage, security, insurance and tax costs, however, these are included within the issued share price.
